THE SHANKLY HOTEL

It was important for us, when designing The Shankly Hotel brand and logo, that we created something symbolic and reflective of both Shankly and the class and culture of both the man and the hotel.

Upon cataloguing my grandad's memorabilia, I came across a document from the House of Heraldry. It seems some research had been carried out into what the Shankly family coat of arms may look like.

The result is the document shown below, describing features such as lions, a broken sword, some armour and the motto, 'Pro Patria et Religione'.

We thought it would be a fantastic idea to use this description to create a crest to operate as the hotel's brand; but crucially, we also felt it would be good to incorporate elements of the Scottish coat of arms, to pay homage to Bill Shankly's heritage. Both descriptions (the Shankly family crest and the Scottish crest) were given to our fantastic designers at go cre8 and the result is what you see today — a crest that merges both design concepts and that emphatically symbolises Shankly and the hotel.
